

Welcome to penscollection.com

Last Updated Monday, 09 April 2007

To collect is human. They say collecting is a hobby. But for some it is a real obsession. When you can't stop once you started... When you try to assemble a complete collection by all means possible... This website is intended for those who are obsessed with writing pens. Those who strive to make their pens collection really prodigious will find their home here.

Have you ever imagined what a tremendous role a small writing pen plays in our life? Of course in our modern society we all have computers, notebooks and mobile phones, that we use to type in and store various sorts of information. But this small and oblong item is still indispensable in our life. Just for a minute try to imagine the situation when there is no writing instruments at all: no pens, no pencils, just nothing... That would be a real mess! You won't be able even to put down your signature! To say nothing of filling an application form, writing a request or leaving a note for your kid!

Writing pens have a long and interesting history. We can even say that the history of pens is the history of civilization itself. Indeed, the whole our history is written down with the help of this reliable tool that has been gradually changing since the ancient times. Without it we would have never known the story of us and our civilizations. There would never be those tons of books, signs and drawings. There would be no us!

Humankind has invented so many types and models of pens throughout its history that it's almost impossible to keep them all in one place. Bamboo and reed pens, quills and antlers, dip pens and fountains, ballpoints and rollerballs... Probably that is why there's no absolutely complete pens collection. But it doesn't stop true collectors as it's their obsession!